I. INTRODUCTION

Currently, Artificial Intelligence has evolved from its initial role as an auxiliary computing tool into a core driving force powering global digital transformation, and has comprehensively reshaped the operation models, value creation paths, and user interaction logics of all major mainstream digital platforms [1], [2], [3]. A synthesis of existing research shows that AI-driven digital systems have achieved deep, widespread implementation in four core fields: advertising, e-commerce, education, and digital media [2]. The entire industry's broad reliance on intelligent algorithms has spurred a transformation of content governance mechanisms today, in the digital ecosystem, content relevance, visibility, and user engagement are all dominated by intelligent computing models rather than traditional manual processes [4], [5], [6].

II. LITERATURE REVIEW

A. AI Algorithms for Personalization and Content Relevance

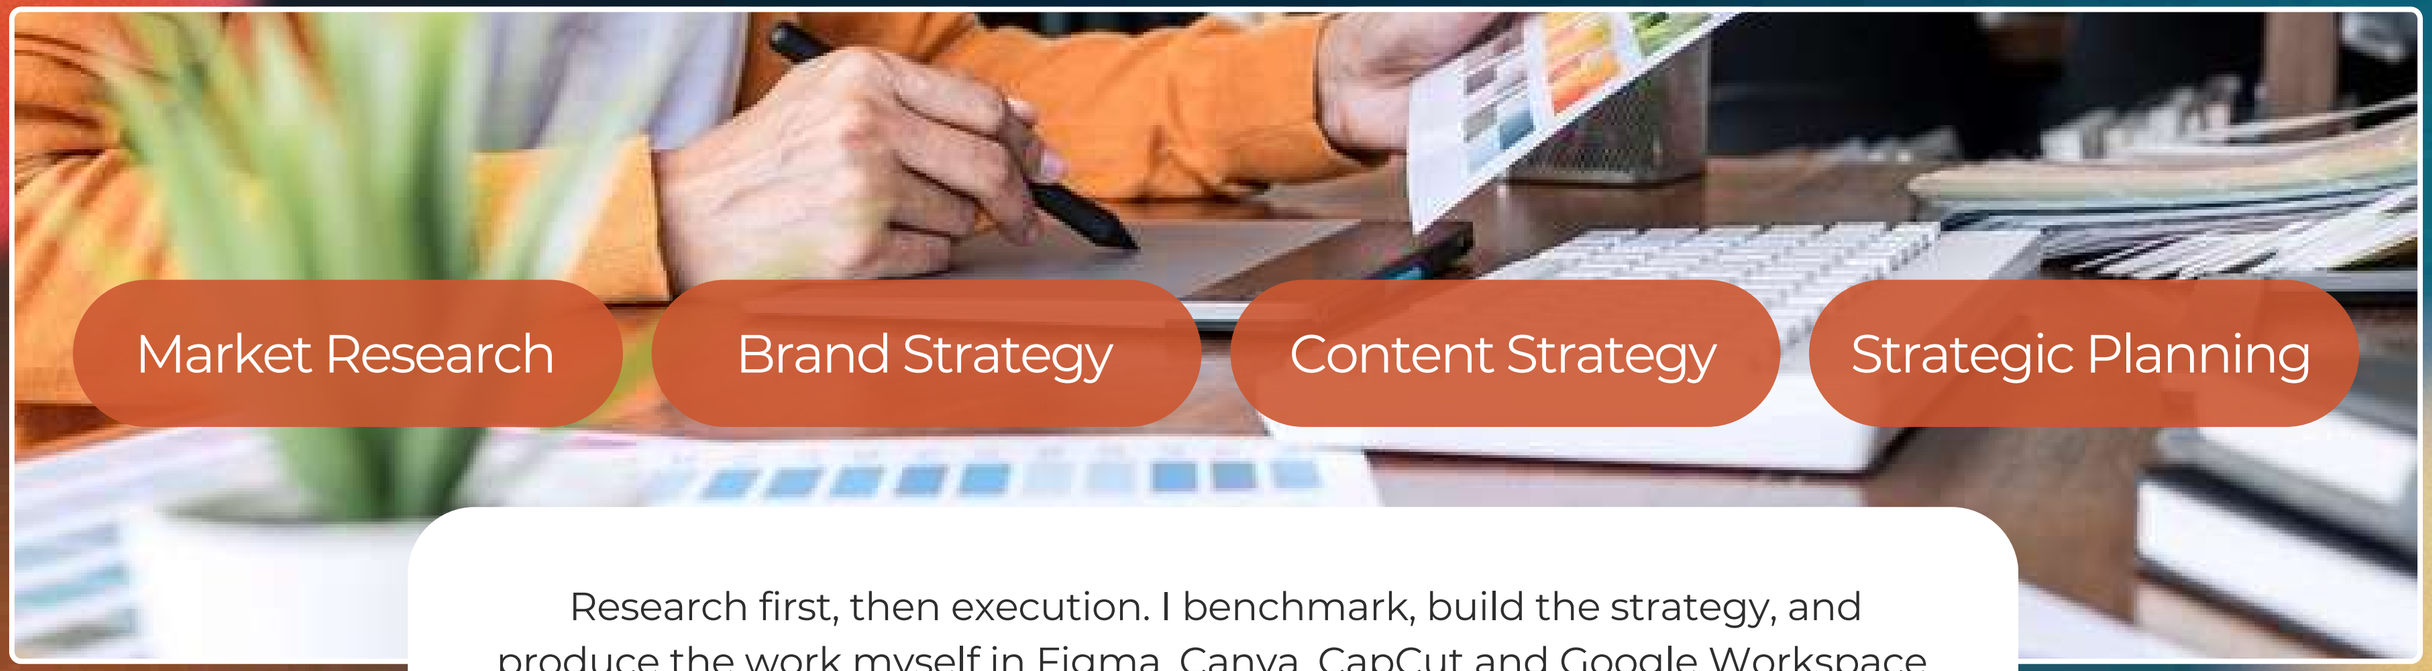

AI-driven personalization has become a core function of today's digital platforms, enabling systems to deliver relevant content tailored to user needs. According to the cited external literature [4], [5], [6], mainstream recommendation algorithms fall into four categories: collaborative filtering predicts user preferences based on similarities in user behavior; [12] content filtering relies on semantic contextual features; [6] hybrid models address sparsity and cold start problems to boost the accuracy and robustness of systems; deep learning uncovers complex relationships and emotional associations across multimedia data [4].

The recently emerging Retrieval-Augmented Generation (RAG) system can improve the content quality and context

Strategic Planning

Research first, then execution. I benchmark, build the strategy, and produce the work myself in Figma, Canva, CapCut and Google Workspace, with Claude, ChatGPT and Gemini speeding up research and drafts.

How I Work

Decode
Find the real problem hiding behind the brief.

Brainstorm
Throw rough ideas on the board. Keeping that bites.

Position
One sharp angle: who it's for, what we say, why it wins.

Sharpen
Cut everything that doesn't earn its place.

Deliver
Turn strategy into work that works in the real world.

Running underneath it all: 3A framework.
ASSESS the situation. ASSEMBLE the right plan and people. ACTION it.
